Regina Maris Reunion 2013 is History

For you shipmates who did not make it, here's a brief recap of the weekend's events.

Friday (7p to 11p, Sept 6) Cape Ann Cinema. All gathered at the cinema to view the photos they had brought of their time aboard Regina . Crew described their photos from the audience. More than once, shipmates were reunited when they realized they were both in a picture. Photo Nicola Bloedel

Saturday (1p to 3p, Sept 7) aboard the schooners, Ardelle and Lannon The afternoon was spent sailing in company in the Gloucester harbor. That's the Ardelle on the horizon. Photo Steve Nelson

Saturday (930a and 4pm Sept 7) Gloucester Marine Heritage Center shop.
2 Roundtable Discussions: "Sail Rigs and Voyaging Roundtable" in the morning and "Legacy of Scientific Research" in the afternoon after the sail. Photo Steve Nelson

Artifact Room Filled with Regina's Past

Many brought the physical artifacts of their time aboard Regina and displayed them in the Gloucester Marine Heritage Center classroom over the weekend. photo albums, sail plans, personal journals, log books, voyage charts, books, pamphlets, sewing palms & marlin spikes, t-shirts, seaman's papers. audio recordings, Regina's bell, paintings, video tapes, and more. The pictures that follow show just a small sampling of the artifacts Regina crew brought to share.

Reunion Group Photo Needs Editing

Shipmate Alex Abate did a great job herding the crew together for the group photos on Saturday night of the Reunion. Most everyone managed to identify themselves on a printout of the photo the next morning, but the process was not perfect. There are still some unidentified folks in the pictures. Names may be misspelled and crew may be mislabeled. So before we finalize the official group photo, we need your help. Check that you are correctly labeled, then see if you can identify the unlabeled crew (Nos 12, 18, 20 and 56, and finally look over the whole picture to make sure that others you know are correctly labeled. Send those corrections into to us by Replying to this newsletter. Once we are satisfied that all is correct, we will make up a final high resolution jpg photo (with everyone correctly ID'd) that you can print out as cool 8 x 10 glossy for your wall.

The Jolly Boat will Continue . . .

Many new friendships were made at the reunion and not a few plots hatched. There is aRegina T-Shirt project underway, ways to digitize and archive Regina ship plans and log books are being investigated, regional gatherings and trips are under discussion, and much more. The Jolly Boat will continue to be to get the Regina Maris news out to you each month (roughly).

So please take a moment to check and update your contact information in Jolly Boat mailing list. At the very bottom of this newsletter, you will find a link titled "update subscription preferences" Click on that link and check your information. Please make sure that your dates aboard Regina are correct for locating you on the Crew Timeline. Also please fill in the address information--city, state, and country (no street address necessary) so we can help you find other Regina crew in your area.

If you have any news to share with your Regina shipmates in the Jolly Boat, or have a project you'd like to suggest or participate in, send us an email at
